

Det nære og det storslåede

To aktuelle vikingedstillinger fortæller helt forskellige historier

Nikolaj Mangurten Rubin

Abstract

The near and the magnificent.
Two current Viking exhibitions tell widely different stories

This article compares two current Viking exhibitions in Danish museums; a very small one at a local museum just outside of Copenhagen, and a large-scale exhibition in the National Museum's biggest exhibition hall. The two exhibitions are very different but share a conceptual design, which combines traditional display of items with a fiction film.

